

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS IN NEW YORK.

DEPARTURE OF COLONEL BLEVINS'S REGIMENT FOR WASHINGTON.

Colonel Blevins's crack regiment of German Rifles, which they were quartered for some time past, for the national capital, to join their brethren in arms in defending the constitution, the laws and the great principle of liberty. From an early hour in the forenoon the soldiers were in the garden in large numbers, jabbering their own peculiar vernacular, and rushing about with frantic gesticulations. Each knapsack was drawn from the pile which stood in the garden with alacrity, and bayoneted, and everything got in readiness for the start. At five o'clock the regiment, seven men, entered on Broadway street, opposite the Palace Garden, where a dense crowd had assembled to bid them good-bye. Having gone through some military manoeuvres they were then led into marching order, when they proceeded to Broadway, and thence by Grand street to the Jersey City ferry. Although the aspect of the garden was somewhat threatening, it did not deter the officers of both sides from animating Broadway with a brilliant display of arms and accoutrements. The soldiers, on their part, were not less animated, and the scene was a most interesting one. The regiment, after a short march, arrived at the Jersey City ferry, where they were met by a large number of friends and relatives. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE SEVENTY-NINTH HIGHLAND REGIMENT.

It was expected that the Seventy-ninth Highland regiment, Colonel Elliot, would have departed for the seat of war yesterday afternoon, but the non-arrival of the troops mustered in full force opposite the Arsenal, in White street, and after a short repose they were then marched to the Arsenal, where they were to be quartered for the night. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

DEPARTURE OF THE NINTH REGIMENT.

The Ninth regiment, N. Y. S. M., has at last left the city and gone to the war. They were among the first to volunteer, but false promises had been held out to them, and numbers of recruits, able bodied men, who were anxious to go into service, having left lucrative positions, were compelled to join some other regiments, or wait for the first orders ordering the Ninth off. By great exertions on the part of the friends of the regiment, and no small aid from the officers, they were able to serve for three weeks. They were then sent to the seat of war, and were among the first to be killed. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FIFTEENTH REGIMENT.

Colonel Murphy is stationed at Fort Schuyler, where his regiment is actively engaged in drill and perfecting themselves. As soon as they are uniformed they will travel in appearance any regiment yet accepted, the men being of an average height and age. As to the material, it is of the very best, the men, with few exceptions, are first class mechanics, and in the emergency of the war, they will be prompt, capable, and invaluable. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE LINCOLN GREENS.

In the name of a free company now organizing at Lafayette Hall. They are commanded by Major Byron, and are intended to act on foot and mounted, with their numbers limited to one hundred. Only well built young men, measuring not less than five feet six inches in height, and with the addition of good education and during the war will be received. Those who have served in the army or navy, and who are of good moral character, will be given preference. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE SEVENTY-NINTH HIGHLAND REGIMENT.

The Twenty-ninth regiment (formerly the Astor regiment) has been in the city for some time past, and is now being organized. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

NEWS AT GENERAL ARTHUR'S OFFICE.

In the Quartermaster's Department there was nothing very important yesterday. General Arthur is very busy, however, providing for the wants of the troops. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

DEPARTURE OF THE UNION RANGERS FOR STATION ISLAND.

The organization called the Union Rangers, better known as Kettler's Rangers, left their quarters at the foot of West Forty-ninth street yesterday afternoon, and proceeded by steamboat to Staten Island, where they took possession of the barracks lately occupied by Colonel Allen. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE WASHINGTON VOLUNTEERS.

This company which has been quartered in barracks at the corner of Thirty-first street and Third avenue for the last twelve days, suddenly received orders last evening to move to more ample and comfortable quarters at Forty-ninth street, North River. The New York company, which was the first to be organized, and the New Jersey company, which was the second, were both present. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE PAY OF THE VOLUNTEERS.

General Headquarters, State of New York, PAYMASTER'S DEPARTMENT, No. 27 Broadway, May 27, 1861. Will you do this department the kindness and the volunteer regiments the benefit of stating in your issue of tomorrow, that the method in which each of the volunteers in this State is to receive his pay for the period in which it was in the service of the State, is from the time it was accepted by the State until the time it was accepted by the United States, in accordance with the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of New York, passed in 1860, and in accordance with the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the United States, passed in 1861. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE SEVENTY-NINTH HIGHLAND REGIMENT.

It was expected that the Seventy-ninth Highland regiment, Colonel Elliot, would have departed for the seat of war yesterday afternoon, but the non-arrival of the troops mustered in full force opposite the Arsenal, in White street, and after a short repose they were then marched to the Arsenal, where they were to be quartered for the night. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FIFTEENTH REGIMENT.

Colonel Murphy is stationed at Fort Schuyler, where his regiment is actively engaged in drill and perfecting themselves. As soon as they are uniformed they will travel in appearance any regiment yet accepted, the men being of an average height and age. As to the material, it is of the very best, the men, with few exceptions, are first class mechanics, and in the emergency of the war, they will be prompt, capable, and invaluable. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE LINCOLN GREENS.

In the name of a free company now organizing at Lafayette Hall. They are commanded by Major Byron, and are intended to act on foot and mounted, with their numbers limited to one hundred. Only well built young men, measuring not less than five feet six inches in height, and with the addition of good education and during the war will be received. Those who have served in the army or navy, and who are of good moral character, will be given preference. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.

THE FUNERAL OF SERGEANT BUTLER.

The circumstances attending the death of this officer, a young man must be fresh in the public mind. He was a member of company D, First New York, and was killed at the battle of Fort Mifflin. The regiment then embarked on a steamer, and proceeded to New Jersey, where they were to be quartered for the night. The next morning they proceeded to New York, and were quartered at the Jersey City ferry.